[SPECIAL TO THE EVENTING WORLD.] IVY CITY RACE TRACK, WARRINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—It is the same old story about the r-rain and fog, fog and rain-even se to-day than on previous days. The track is now thoroughly soaked. This morning some of the owners got together and decided to ask the Executive Committee not to race to-morrow (Saturday) but to let the programme announced go over un'al Monday. The committee promptly agreed that postponement was the best policy, hoping that the weather in the mean time would clear. There will be four extra days announced, which will give the club a day's margin in case of more bad weather. What to do to-morrow is stirring up some of the visitors, and plans for a raid on Virginia are being perfected, but a number will return to New York to-night, intending to go Sunday night.

The racing to-day began with the customary set-to between McLaughlin and Garrison in their race for riding honors. Jimmy won the first race, on Favor, and Garrison the scond, on Stuyvesant, which still kept the 'Snapper" two winning mounts shead. The thirdrace—the Potomac Stakes, for hree-year-olds, at a mile and a quarterbrought the two against each other in direct prought the two against each other in direct issue — McLaughlin on Kingston at 123 pounds, Garrison on Dunboyne at 118 pounds. It was a great race, in which both horsen and riders fairly outdid themselves, with the result in doubt almost to the last strides, and then Kingston and McLaughlin won. Score: Garrison, 104; McLaughlin, 206.

8. For the fourth race McLaughlin was on For the fourth race McLaughlin was on Richmond. He was a strong favorite. But the unexpected happened, Florence M., running like a witch, stalled of all challenges in the stretch, winning easily, to the great delight of the Daly followers and the holders of the few Mutuels which paid $179.30 each. Jimmy was also on Banner Bearer in the last race. For once fortune smiled on him. He won the race easily and the record between him and Garrison is at last a tie.

It is said here to day that Mr. Harwood's leg was not broken and that he is at Willard's Hotel, doing well.

The Race.—Favor got the best of a poor start followed by Barnum and Young Duke. Before they reached the quarter Nettie B. man into second pisce, followed by Maia. Favor kept his lead to the half when Barnum began to move up and reached Favor at the three-quarters. The two made a good race up the stretch, but the old gelding is losing his speed, and Favor won somewhat easily by a length, Barnum eight lengths in front of Young Duke, with Maia fourth and Nellie B. fifth, Mutuels paid $6.80.

SECOND RACE. Handicap sweepstakes for all ages, at $20 each. Bif declared, with $500 sidded, of which $100 to the second; three quarters of a mile. S. S. Brown's b. c. Stuyvesant, s. by Glengarry, dam Dublin Belle, 118....... (Garrison)

The Race.—After several breaks they got away with Stuyvesant, Patrocles and Bess in front. Sam Harper quickly rushed through and at the half he was a trifle in front of Stuyvesant, closely followed by Bess and Calera. Half-way round the lower turn Stuyvesant resumed the lead and at the three-quarters he was half a length in front of Sam Harper. The favorite had it all his own way afterwards, winning by three lengths from Bess, who beat the Texan half-bred, Sam Harper, out by a neck for the place, Grimaidi fourth and Harry Russell fifth. Mutuels paid $10.90.

THIND BACE. THIRD BACK.

Potomac Stakes, for three-year-olds at $50 each, mair forfeir, with $1,000 added, of which $250 to the second, third to save its stake; winners of any sweepstakes of the value of $5,000 to carry 19 lb. extra; winners of the Anacontia Stakes to carry 5 lb. extra; horses not having won in 1887 a race of the value of $1,500 allowed 7 lb.; mile and a quarter.

The Race.—The two came away together, when Dunboyne immediately began to force the pace, and at the stand was three lengths in front of Kingston. There was but little change in the run round the turn and down the backstretch to the end of the mile. In the stretch Kingston began to close up, but so well was Dunboyne doing under Garrisson's desperate riding that McLaughlir in turn had to go to work. It was a great treat to see both doing their best, and it was not until they were inside of a hundred yards from the post that Kingston showed the better of the two, and even then, amidst great excitement, he only won by a short half a length. Mutuels paid $7.30.

The Race.—From a good start Frankie B. ran out and, forcing the pace reached the stand a head in front of Florence M., she two lengths in front of Royal Arch and Richmond. The leaders raced to the quarter, followed in turn by Royal Arch, Le Logos and Richmond. At the half Florence M. showed in front, and, although closety pressed, she held it from Frankie B., Royal Arch and Le Legos. At the three-quarters Frankie B. dropped back, when Royal Arch and Richmond in turn challenged, but Florence M. could not be caught and she won quite easily by six lengths from Royal Arch, he a head better than Richmond, with Wilfred fourth and Le Logos fifth. Arrangements for the Production of "Faunt"-Mr. Irving to Remain Here Five Months This Time, and to Play is

M. this morning as rapidly as the white steer it through the heterogeneous jumble of vehicles, attracted considerable attention, for it contained Henry lrving, Miss Ellen Terry, and that lady's youthful daughter, all newly deposited on these hospitable shores by the steamship recognized with his thick bushy iron gray hair, his weirdly unfashionable hat, and his tragic cast of countenance. His fair companion, who seemed to be in her usual jubilant spirits, wore a long, browncheck, tight-fitting ulster, a jaunty little felt hat and a brief gray veil. She surveyed the hat and a brief gray veil. She surveyed the not varticularly edifying spectacle of lower Broadway before noon with considerable interest, and pointed out the sights to her little daughter, who was clad as soberly as Priscilla of Puritan fame.

The victoria in due course arrived at the Buckingham Hotel, and left Miss Terry and her daughter within its precincts. Henry Irving gallantily bade Miss Terry "au revoir," and strolled in a leisurely manner down Fifth avenue, apparently unconscious that he was very generally recognized.

The tragedian entered the Brunswick Hotel where he is to stav, much to the delight of a trio of myrmidons who, in their anxiety to be obsequiously polite, almost fell over one another. One handed Mr. Irving his letters, another prepared to show him up stairs, a third looked and gaped, and then, for the sake of variety, gaped and looked.

Hardly had Mr. Irving been two minutes in the Brunswick, when a tall, rossatebearded gentleman rushed up to him and seized his hand.

"Delighted to see you."

bearded gentleman rushed up to him and seized his hand.

"Delighted to see you."

"Why, old man," replied Irving, as utterly jolly as though the melancholy Dane, the lugubrious Charles and the solemn Shylock were unknown personations, "this is indeed a pleasure."

"Just got in," said Mr. Bram Stoker, Irving's managev, for the man of the energetic greeting was none other. "City of Richmond did bravely. How jolly that we should meet!"

"Yes, indeed," said Irving, "and how's the company?"

"Very well, indeed. Scattering about the city and domiciling their seventy-five selves. How's Miss Terry?"

"In charming health," replied the tragedian.

"In charming health," replied the tiagedian.
Then Mr. Irving shook hards again with Mr. Stoker and Mr. Stoker reciprocated in kind. The tragedian then devoted himself to a small group of newspaper men, though he protested he had very little to say and reflected deeply before he said it,
"Had a delightful voyage," he began.
That was not particularly original and so
Mr. Irving seemed to think. He relapsed into silence.

"So glad to return to America."
That was worse, and the tragedian became aware of that fact when he saw Mr. Stoker smile. He threw off his veil of reserve at once, and chatted in his own entertaining aware of that fact when he saw Mr. Stoker smile. He threw off his veil of reserve at once, and chatted in his own entertaining way.

"The production of 'Faust.'" he said. "which will be seen at the Star Theatre, will be exactly similar to the London Lyceum Theatre production. I have brought my company and my surroundings will be identical. I think the American theatre-going public will enjoy it. They ought to do so," he added, laughing.

"As for any other productions," he went on, "I have my repertoire, which I shall probably dip into. No, I really can't say what we shall give after 'Faust.' Possibly it will be 'Louis XI.,' but I shall know more about that anon. My visit will not be a very long one—only five months, and I am only going to play in the four cities—New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago. I don't think I could include other towns in so short a season as five months."

"The Lyceum Theatre during my absence is occupied' by Miss Anderson. Oh, she is doing splendidly I assure you," he said, with the ungrudging enthusiasm of one who can afford to be kind. "She is really making a brilliant success, and I am glad of it. Positively I am," he added, though not a soul had the faintest intention of contradicting him.

Mr. Irving was very interested in the latest news about Charles Dickens, "Has he really appeared?" he asked. "You say he has been successful? Ah? 'tis well"—this in a dramatic way. "Poor fellow, he was so extremely fidgety and nervous before he left. He must feel easy now. I am quite sure Americans will like him—no, not only for his father's sake, but his own."

At this point one of the myrmidons, who who had been eagerly watching his chance to conduct the tragedian upstairs, came to the front and exclaimed: "This way, if you please, sir," in such deeply deferential tones that Mr. Irving followed him at once.

At the Buckingham, Miss Terry was in far too emotional a mind to talk. The excitement of arrival was quite sufficient to account for this. She went quietly to her rouse in the surface citement of arrival was quite sufficient to account for this. She went quietly to her rooms with her prim little daughter who looked more as if she were being conducted to a "Seminary for Young Ladies" than on a dramatic tour with a triumphant mother.

She was born in Columbus, O., about twenty-three years ago. When Kitty was about two years old the family moved to Lynn, where, shortly after, both her parents died. The young orphan then lived with an aunt, Mrs. Abbie V. Patchell.

The fortunes of the family seem to have enabled the young girl to have received a good education, as, after graduating from the high school, she attended the State Normal School in Salem, where she studied to become a teacher. She was a brilliant conversationlist and a fine linguist, speaking French fluently. As Kitty was pretty and of a lively disposition, she quickly became a great favorite in society.

Gov. Hill will make three addresses during the campaign. Next Tuesday night he will speak at a mass-meeting in Brooklyn. The following evening he will be in Buffalo and Thursday night in Syracuse.

Thursday night in Syracuse.

The Independent Citizens' organization is to-day distributing 200,000 copies of the fol lowing circular : Don't fail to register and vote for De Lancey Nicoli.

To-day and to-morrow, from S.A.M. until 9 P.M., are the only dates for registration.

Grand mass-meeting at Cooper Institute to-night, Oct. 98. night, Oct. 28, Checks are being received by the Finance Committee of the Citizens' organization. The checks received since yesterday amount to $3,000. A gentleman, in contributing $100, to $3,000. A gentleman, in contributing $100, wrote:

I have no interest in party politics but much in good government.

Over eight hundred applications for seats on the platform at Cooper Institute to-night were received to-day alone.

A poor man walked into the Citizens' Head-quarters this afternoon and remarked: "I have no money to contribute, but I have a vote. I am tired of voting for machine candidates."

It is said at the headquarters of the Democratic State Committee that Gov. Hill is very much exercised over the prospect in this city. He is shrewd enough to know that the refusal of the bosses to nominate Mr. Nicoll will hurt the State ticket and that as Mr. Nicoll is now the citizens' nominee, at least ten thousand persons will register to-day and to-morrow who did not intend to vote at this election. A majority of these are Republicans and will vote for the Republican State ticket. The registration to-day isovery heavy in the Seventh, Ninth, Eleventh, Thirteenth and Twenty-first Assembly districts which have a large Republican vote. The members of the Democratic State Committee would be greatly pleased if Col. Fellows would withdraw from the contest, Several of his friends who are members of the State Committee have advised him to the state committee have Lo. 95 95 98 91

The Hand of the People Gives to Nico the Sword of Justice, SLASHED BY A MURDEROUS SAILOR.

AT COOPER UNION TO-NIGHT.

Woman Mortally Wounded and Three Men Badly Cut. A stabbing affray took place at the Green ville House, at 106 West street, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Maggie Casey, aged twentythree, of Jersey City, went to a room in the rear of the bar-room and ordered ginger ale. While she was there a crowd of half-drunken sailors came

LARE MARANACOON, Me., Oct. 28.—John Teemer, of McKeesport, defeated Jacob Gaudaur, of St. Louis, in the great sculling. match here to-day and thereby won the $2,000 stakes and the championship of America. The race, which had to be oned yesterday on account of the roughn f the water, was rowed early this mor the presence of about a thousand up The morning was bright and clear. Je

The morning was bright and clear. James F. Ormond, of Boston, was the umpire. The judges at the start and finish was Al Hamm for Teemer and George Lee for Gandaur. The judges at the turning-stake was Wallace Ross for Teemer, and Peter Conley acted in the same capacity for Gaudaur.

At 8.30 the men were ordered out by Mr. Ormond, and the first to put in an appearance was Gandaur. He was attired in a pair of blue trunks trimmed with red and white, and a red shirt. Teemer appeared shortly afterwards in a red shirt and white cap. Both men looked the pictures of health, and determination was set on their faces.

At 8.55 both men backed up to the starting point. The umpire decided, on account of the inability of the steamer Messalonshee to keep up with the contestants, to appoint a starter, as he would be forced to get as least a quarter of a mile start in order to witness the turn. John Kennedy, of Portland, the well-known carsman, was selected for that purpose.

At 8.0clock the word. "Go." was given.

back behind the bar.

Not long after this the bartender heard a crash from the rear room, and heard one of the sailors, known as Andrew, cry, "I'll cut your throat!"

Then came the sound of a fall, and a woman's voice called:

"I am cut terribly."

When the bartender, whose name is George W. Turrill, got into the rear room he found the girl with a frightful wound in her neck, and three of the sailors also suffering from knife cuts.

Andrew, who is supposed to have done the stabbing, was detained by Turrill, as was George Morgan, another of the sailors. The rest of the gang escaped.

Policeman Brennan took Morgan, who was wounded in the head, and the girl to the Chambers Street Hospital, and Andrew was locked up.

At the hospital all the woman could say was that she was Magre Casey, and that she lived at 186 Steuben street. Jersey City. The wound in her neck was very serious, and was supposed to tall exactly if this was so.

The police managed to learn later that Andrew's last name was Naqre, that he was a Finm and lived at 186 Bowery. The names of the gu Gifford, now at Perth Amboy, and Joseph Murray, deck-hand on the same boat. Andre Nagre had the blood-stained knife in his hand when arrested. He was taken to the tombs.

The race was over. Duryea, Keenan and the rest of the Teemer party were jubilant over the result and took the 10.30 train for Portland, Teemer, Plaisted, Ross, Al Hamm, Ted Daily and John Cullon also Portland, Teemer, Hamm, Ted Daily and John Culion also boarded the train.

Gandanr took his defeat in a manly fashion. After speaking to Mr. Ormond about the back-wash of the steamer he said he was satisfied that he was besten, and had no chance to win.

It is now a settled thing that Teemer will have a chance to row for the world's championship, and if Hanlan is defeated in his race with Beach, Teemer will be sent to Austrelia to row the latter. Durysa and Keensa are loud in their denunciation of the English people who are backing Rubear, and justly claim the first chance to a race between Teemer and the Englishmen, on the grounds that their money has been posted and a challenge forwarded through the proper channel. They further claim that St. John, Gaudaur's backer, has never put up a cent to bind the match, and was waiting to see if his man was going to win the present match.

to see if his man was going to win the present match.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 28.—Teemer was received on his arrival here by all the boating men of this vicinity, who simply went wild over the champion. From the very first Portland people believed in Teemer, and at the last moment put their money on him.

Teemer left the car in company with Fred Plaisted, Wallace Ross, Al Hamm, J. A. Konnedy and M. F. Davis. He was at once surrounded by his admirers, eager to take his hand. He said that he could not tell whether he should row with Beach or not.

Of his victory of this morning, he said: "I won with ease; it was my race from the start."
